2	Ability to communicate in an easy email format.	Mar 30, 2011 8:37 AM

6	I am guilty of never getting around to gaining access. I imagine some prodding may have been successful in getting me to seek it out.	Apr 4, 2011 9:28 AM
7	Don't know how to access,can't remember my password, and don't know who to contact. My bad, because I've missed a lot of recent STRIMA conferences but periodic reminders and/or short instructional sessions at each conference would be very helpful in my opinion	Apr 4, 2011 11:26 PM

Page 1, Q6. To survey the membership, if you prefer to use the forum instead of using emails, tell us why.

1	I think our members feel they get a better and quicker response by sending emails, although the forum is the more organized approach.	Mar 31, 2011 10:36 AM
---	---	-----------------------

Page 1, Q7. To survey the membership, if you prefer using emails, instead of the forum tell us why.
Check all that apply.

1	I can easily forward an email to the person in my organization that requested the information. Forum, not so much.	Mar 30, 2011 8:53 AM
2	When I ask for information, I need it quickly and from many state risk managers. Historically, using the forum does not generate much response. I can get immediate response from an email versus using the forum. I don't have the luxury to wait a long period of time, nor only a few responses.	Mar 30, 2011 9:53 AM
3	If the forum were more user friendly, easier to access and comment, it would be more beneficial to use over emails.	Mar 30, 2011 2:21 PM
4	The value to me is that it gets out there and is not subject to whether folks ever go into the forum.	Apr 4, 2011 9:28 AM

Page 1, Q9. If response to 8 is "Yes,", why?

1	Yes, but only if we can count on the original sender to compile the information and provide the responses to the general membership.	Mar 30, 2011 8:21 AM
2	It would cut down on the number of reply emails you would receive.	Mar 30, 2011 8:29 AM
3	Its a more efficient use of the process and avoids the reply to all overload for everyone on the distribution list.	Mar 30, 2011 8:53 AM
4	Avoid getting all the Reply to All and provides all the responses in one place.	Mar 30, 2011 10:20 AM
5	This will reduce the number of e-mails that I get, and will allow me to review responses once at my leisure. Unfortunately, I can't remember ever receiving a compiled response even though I asked for one.	Mar 30, 2011 10:22 AM
6	I don't like receiving every response to an email - there may be some that I don't want to receive or take the time to open and read (like -"me too" responses).	Mar 30, 2011 12:42 PM
7	Keeps my email box less crowded.	Mar 30, 2011 12:50 PM
8	I resent "reply to all" responses filling up my on box. I'd prefer to get a summary that I could save and use in the future if need be.	Mar 31, 2011 10:08 AM
9	I support the concept if members do not want all responses clogging up their email system, but personally I like to see the questions and all responses. It provides good information and if something is not relevant to me I just delete it.	Mar 31, 2011 10:36 AM
10	I don't need to see everyone's response to a question which I may or may not be interested in. This method means only two e-mails in my box; the question and the results.	Apr 4, 2011 9:28 AM
11	it would not fill up my mailbox	Apr 4, 2011 10:03 AM
12	It seems more efficient.	Apr 4, 2011 11:39 AM
13	Because I,like a lot of other surveyors, often forget to compile the responses and send them to everyone or I don't have the time to do so. I know that it involves a lot more e-mails, but I actually keep everyone's e-mail as a record	Apr 4, 2011 11:26 PM
14	If email surveys are used, then I think this is the best approach. We all get many emails throughout the day and don't need to be copied on all responses if an aggregate report will be generated.	Apr 5, 2011 11:09 AM

Page 1, Q10. If response to 8 is "No", why?

1	I believe an open forum with first person, original responses is better. Does compilation mean summary or just putting them in one communication?	Mar 30, 2011 8:37 AM
2	Initially, I was for this idea, but I have changed my mind on the issue. I know that I may have to filter some responses that are not merited, but overall, the emails that reply to all generate and foster communication and interest between risk managers. You are not required to reply and can delete if you want to. Our association is built on communication and cooperation. We need to do anything at all that stimulates that objective, even if it has some negatives.	Mar 30, 2011 9:53 AM
3	Because the original requester may not compile responses and send them out to everyone. I'd only support this if there was a commitment from everyone that they would put the responses together for us.	Mar 30, 2011 10:26 AM
4	I do get several emails daily. However, if I do not want to respond to an email or read the response of someone in a survey, it is easier to delete. I can still maintain emails relevant to a particular subject rather than having to go to the website to retrieve them.	Mar 30, 2011 1:39 PM
5	It is too time consuming for the "sender" to compile results and remember who to send them to. If I'm not interested in the topic and have been cc'd, I just hit delete.	Mar 30, 2011 2:21 PM
6	I think people like to see other people's responses.	Apr 4, 2011 8:04 AM
7	Already receive enough emails.	Apr 4, 2011 9:50 AM
8	Even though I may not ask the question, I am interested in the other responses.	Apr 4, 2011 10:26 AM
9	It assumes each sender will take the time to compile and send to everyone. I don't mind getting multiple emails from various respondents, but I probably get fewer emails than some people do.	Apr 4, 2011 2:00 PM
10	Because I,like a lot of other surveyors, often forget to compile the responses and send them to everyone or I don't have the time to do so. I know that it involves a lot more e-mails, but I actually keep everyone's e-mail as a record	Apr 4, 2011 11:26 PM

Page 2, Q22. If the response to question 21 is not exemplary, how can communication be improved?

1	Perhaps a reminder that the minutes are posted for all to view.	Mar 30, 2011 8:39 AM
2	Since I am currently on the board, I would defer to the membership for their response.	Mar 30, 2011 9:55 AM
3	The website could be more robust like RIMS or PRIMA's sites with reports, data, and white papers that are specific to our State issues. We all have a lot of information and expertise and we could be sharing it with each other rather than each of us inventing the wheel every time. I understand that STRIMA does not have a full-time staff to maintain the website and help the association's board, but maybe its time to consider a little extra cost to the States to fund an FTE that is good at doing this type of thing to help. Otherwise, the State contacts will just go around STRIMA and contact individuals themselves and the information won't be shared and useful to the rest of us.	Mar 30, 2011 10:30 AM
4	Jamie was great about communication, I always enjoyed receiving his emails. I prefer that items from the association be "pushed" to membership, instead of a member having to go to a website to get information and remembering to do so. Many organizations, RIMS & PRIMA "push" info to their members in the form of newsletters, announcements, blogs, group discussions, etc. There are also groups established on LinkedIn that can be "joined" and provide a wealth of information. STRIMA's strength is the relationships between State Risk Managers built at each conference, hence probably why I feel comfortable and prefer emailing them.	Mar 30, 2011 2:27 PM
5	I don't recall regular communications to STRIMA membership - sorry!	Apr 5, 2011 11:12 AM

Page 3, Q28. If response to question 27 is "too short"; what would you do differently?

1	Certainly would not object to it being a day longer, either front or back end.	Mar 30, 2011 12:55 PM
---	--	-----------------------

Page 3, Q29. If response to question 27 is "too long"; what would you change to make to conference shorter?

1	Shorter conference (3 days at most), less days out of the office. More educational seminars. Lengthen roundtable. Regional sessions would be helpful. Less emphasis on the companion activities.	Mar 30, 2011 8:42 AM
2	Shorten the conference to full days on Monday and Tuesday with a half day Wednesday.	Mar 30, 2011 2:29 PM

Page 3, Q31. If reponse to question 30 is "yes," what do you do during Tuesday open time period?

1	I have done all of the above at one conference or another. In addition, I have gone out to lunch with Associate Members	Mar 30, 2011 9:56 AM
2	All of the above.	Apr 4, 2011 8:08 AM
3	May also meet/lunch with broker, and do a little work from office.	Apr 4, 2011 11:43 AM

Page 3, Q33. If you could change one thing about the conference what would it be?

1	Have the annual meeting at the beginning of the conference rather than at the end of the conference. Think about holding the conference in May rather than September.	Mar 30, 2011 8:37 AM
2	Shorten conference, more substantive, lengthen roundtable presentations.	Mar 30, 2011 8:42 AM
3	I would try to place the conference in a metropolitan area instead of a remote location. It was very disappointing to find us at the airport in Seattle -- we could not walk to anything. Everything was a costly cab ride away.	Mar 30, 2011 8:58 AM
4	More states participating.	Mar 30, 2011 12:55 PM
5	Increase our communicative abilities to include Facebook.	Mar 30, 2011 1:46 PM
6	More time spent on the roundtable updates portion with each Risk Manager having an opportunity to discuss a keynote project completed the prior year.	Mar 30, 2011 2:29 PM
7	Nothing - I attended the conference last year for the first time in over a decade and was very pleasantly surprised at the quality level and professionalism involved in the planning and implementation of the conference.	Mar 31, 2011 10:36 AM
8	I've always found the round table information very informative and helpful. I might try to do more with that.	Apr 4, 2011 8:08 AM
9	Benchmarking, Standards, and Best Practices with more involvement and oversight from the Executive Committee. I recognize that all states are different and no one size fits all but it would really help if, like AGRIP, there was a national self-accreditation process and we were all striving to achieve some standard of excellence. We went through AGRIP's self-accreditation process but they wouldn't recognize us as a pool even though we met all of their standards. In our state, it is prestigious and noteworthy when a national standard is met and recognition is received. This could be done every four years by a sub-committee appointed by the Executive Committee and it could require that members participate in Cost of Risk surveys as well. AGRIP has a full time executive director who was a former pool director. Why not STRIMA?	Apr 4, 2011 11:37 PM

Page 4, Q36. If you answered Yes and participation required that you must provide data for your state's Property, Liability and Workers Compensation costs in order to participate would you still be willing to participate?

1	I would try, but worker's compensation is handled in a different cabinet. I might be able to access that information or I might not.	Mar 30, 2011 8:59 AM
2	Do not have liability only property and workers comp	Apr 4, 2011 10:36 AM
3	worker Comp would not be provided	Apr 4, 2011 10:44 AM
4	Have participated in past. WC is not handled by us, and information difficult to get. Survey weighted too much to WC. Also didn't like how liability reinsurance was handled.	Apr 4, 2011 11:46 AM
